Metrics Across 3 Queries

In the case of user feedback, the queries seemed to get better with every additional input, and precision, recall, and MAP were improved for every iteration. In the case of pseudo-relevance, the queries seemed to get better after the first iteration, but then peak for all the iterations after that. The issue here is, if the relevant docs weren't in the top 3, then the algorithm wouldn't pick it up. It would marginally improve the query. The MAP wouldn't progress to 1 in most cases for every additional query. The recall seemed to improve after the first iteration and was higher than user-feedback queries after the first iteration.
